

I am absolutely, categorically opposed to allowing banks or any other telemarketers to call me about their products or services. The state and national no-call list programs have been a Godsend for millions of us who are sick and tired of having our privacy invaded. How could you possibly believe the telemarketers' ridiculous argument that what they want is for the good of their customers? What a line of B.S.!